

MERCHANDISE

by Mark Folsom

Mark is so happy (see his expression?) about the new COG pins, and embroidered COG patches, he decided to go for a ride.

Check 'em out, the pictures to the left are actual size, and there's more details on the order form.

FROM THE EDITOR

by Rick Hall

"Sam" is another year older and I've survived my one year internship as editor. I really thought I'd have 'lost' it several issues ago but sharing the same ward as Steve has given me extra time to get the Concourier out. Now with V10#1 going to press, "Sam" and I eagerly anticipate spring.

This is your life

Every so often, a special person strikes a cord with me, usually because of the work they do for the COG. The guy I'm thinking of isn't a COG officer, AD or AAD, seldom goes on COG rides, in fact he's pretty much anonymous. Yet, his actions (or lack thereof) have done more to promote the COG than any of you know.

We have a web site on the internet, where we keep information about our club for all of the world to see. It is no small feat finding a computer to 'host' all the files about us, not to mention the fees involved, yet this 'mystery' person has remained silent since I met him when I lived in Arizona. That's right Rusty, This Is Your Life!

Rusty Morris has been instrumental in getting, and keeping the core web site up and running. Viewable worldwide, many of our newest members found us through our web site. Thanks Rusty, I owe you one.

Rusty is a key player with Ability Software, Abilnet internet services, and Arizona Security, a residential and commercial security firm in Tempe, AZ. I encourage all of you to investigate what his company has to offer. I know you will find their services above average. . .after all, he is a COG member.

Of pencils and pens

Also I would like to thank some members who answered my call for artistic assistance. On page 18 you'll notice a schematic drawing. Being all thumbs, artistically speaking, and knowing the power of the internet and the COG mailing list, I posted a request for help in the graphics department.

The replies started arriving in minutes with offers of drawings in just about every format imaginable. So without further rambling, I'd like to personally thank, in no particular order:

Wendy Stuart	Jim Palvis
Jim Kueneman	Derek Buchler
Frank George	Mike Wolfe
Bob Porter	Guy Young II
David Chowenhill	Rody Martin
Ken Stark	Paul Nikoden

If you don't have internet access, this is a good example why you should.

Finally, check the updated Officers and Industry Members lists inside the covers, check out the latest COG merchandise pictured above, then make sure Carl Metler has the latest poop for a very soon to be released Membership Directoy.

See you on the road soon,

Rick and "Sam"
